Chitosan

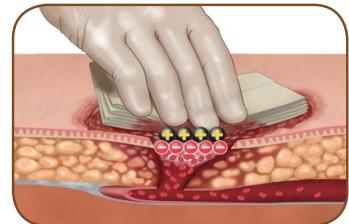

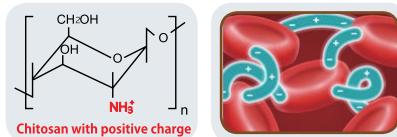

Produced from natural derived crustacean,
Convert it into Chitosan, which has great hemostatic effect

* No allergic reactions as protein components are completely removed

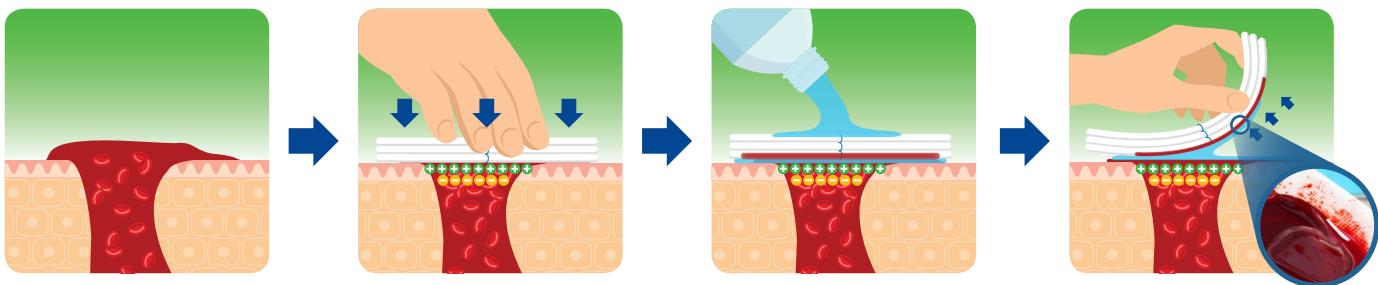

Hemostasis Mechanism

- Positive charge of chitosan contacts blood cells with negative charge to attract blood cells
- Accelerates hemostatic effect by coagulation of platelets
- Promotes clotting reaction of blood to form fibrins

How to use

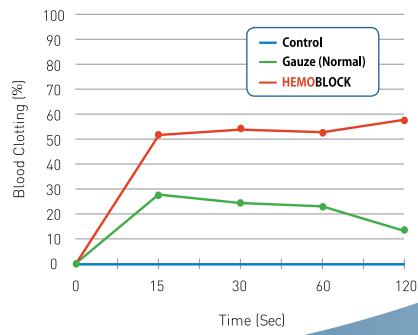

1. Clean around wounded site
2. Open bag to use dressing and contact on the wounded site for a couple of minutes of compression to control bleeding. The dressing can be trimmed in necessary shapes
3. For removal of used dressings, pour gently sterilized saline water to eliminate residues on applied site
4. Wet dressing becomes gel-like, it helps easy removal of residues and prevention of 2nd bleeding on wounded site.

How to use

Circular Type (Biopsy)

- Hold the edge of Hemoblock Tampon using Forcep
- Insert the tampon deeply through a vaginal speculum
- Hold down the tampon using Forcep and remove a vaginal speculum
- After bleeding is controlled, remove the tampon by pulling a thread
(It would be much easier to remove the tampon if using a feminine cleanser)

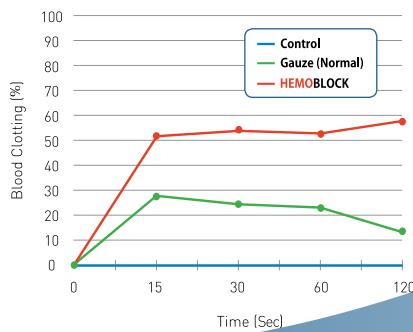

Conical Type (Conization)

- Hold the edge of Hemoblock Tampon using Forcep
- After conization, insert the tampon deeply to match the shape
- Hold down the tampon using Forcep and remove a vaginal speculum
- After bleeding is controlled, remove the tampon by pulling a thread
